

We're here for you

The Optum Substance Use Helpline is just a phone call away

Dealing with substance use can be frightening and overwhelming. Whether you have a loved one facing challenges or you're worried about your own substance use, you may feel worried and helpless. You're not alone. Millions of others are also coping with this issue. Some are addicted to alcohol. Some are battling drugs. Either way, substance use is not a sign of weakness. It's a treatable disease. And we're here to help.

The helpline is staffed with highly trained and licensed recovery advocates

They will talk with you about your concerns and needs. They will educate and guide you or your loved one. The recovery advocate can refer to a substance use treatment professional who will develop a treatment plan. They can also help you with family support.

When to seek professional help

How do you know it is time to seek care for yourself or a loved one? There are many signs that say it's time to get help:

Weight loss or decline of appearance

Mood swings or mysterious change in personality

Neglecting responsibilities

Abrupt changes in behavior

Where to get treatment

Everyone's situation is unique. An individualized treatment strategy begins with an assessment by a licensed substance use treatment professional. Treatment options may include:

Individual and/or group therapy

Medication for opioid use disorder (MOUD)

Medication for alcohol use disorder (MAUD)

Intensive outpatient treatment

Residential treatment

What to look for in a program

There are many factors that can help you achieve a successful recovery. Overall, providers and recovery programs should:

Use evidence-based practices

Show a track record of positive results

Have the highest level of credentialing

Include family and support system in treatment

Not sure what type of treatment is right for you or a loved one?

Take a 10-minute assessment to get a recommendation at treatmentatlas.org. Your responses will be anonymous. You'll receive guidance you can use to find the right treatment.
